

HAA LATSEEN COMMUNITY PROJECT

February through May 2018 in Juneau

Photo by Lance Twitchell

Sealaska Heritage invites emerging Northwest Coast artists to participate in the 2018 Haa Latseen Community Project in Juneau.

The project includes the following components:

- Carving practice hosted by Donald Gregory (most Saturdays now-May 19)
- Business class for Alaska Native artists with Saunders McNeill (May 26 & 27)
- Formline workshop with David R. Boxley (March 11-18)
- Frontlet carving with Ray Watkins (April 23-May 5, 10, 11 & 12)

Artists age 18 and over are welcome to apply to attend one or more of these components. However, we encourage applicants to attend all components to gain the program's full benefits.

---

REGISTRATION LINKS:

Saturday carving practice

goo.gl/QGLkzE

apply ASAP

Business class

goo.gl/kvJPDz

May 26 & 27

Frontlet carving

goo.gl/pjnqEg

by April 16

---

Questions? Contact Natasha Phillips at (907) 586-9167 or natasha.phillips@sealaska.com

Haa Latseen Community Project is a Sealaska Heritage program, funded in part by the National Endowment for the Arts, the Alaska State Council on the Arts, and the Juneau Arts & Humanities Council, in partnership with Tlingit-Haida Regional Housing Authority and Lemon Creek Correctional Center, with additional support from the Haa Aani Carving Program, the Juneau Re-entry Coalition, and the City and Borough of Juneau. The formline workshop is funded by the U.S. Dept. of Education, Alaska Native Education Program. Contents of this project do not necessarily represent the policy of DOE, and you should not assume endorsement by the Federal Government.