

Alphabet Sensory

Babies and toddlers learn through touch. In this sensory bin, children can freely explore with their hands all the different sensations and textures.

- Alphabet letters can be pulled out and identified, or named.
- Can they trace the letter with their finger?
- Spell three-letter words and name them. Your child will see how letters can form words.
- Adults can play, too! Roll your sleeves up, and get in there.
- The positive connections children make between literacy and play strengthen a love of learning.
